WHITNEY'S ENTRY FUTURITY CHOICE

Nineteen Horses Are Named to Start in Rich Event at Sheepshead Bay To-Morrow—Race Will Be a Battle of Millions—The Probable Odds as Quoted for The Evening World by Bookmaker 'Eddie' Burke.

If the weather is clear and the track fast to-morrow, the race should result as follows: Whitney stable first. Madden stable second.

Secretary Cornelius Fellers sends out nineteen probable starters for the great Futurity Stakes at Sheepshead Bay to-morrow. The fall meeting of the Coney Island Jockey Club begins then and this meeting, brilliant as it always is, is to be started with a star of the first magnitude in the rich Futurity.

Of these nineteen horses named, only one is a doubtful starter. That is Sun Shower, a filly out of Sunny Slope, who was the pride of Jere Dunn's heart. Dunn is a poor man and therefore has no chance to win this big event.

Millionaires Own Cracks.

The millionaires in racing own all the crack thoroughbreds of the turf. The few thousands that would be a fortune to a poor man are like pennies to men like William C. Whitney, J. B. Hagen, Perry Belmont, Clarence Mackey and others.

In no other race in the history of the American turf has there been a larger representation of wealth. The wealth of the men who own the horses in this race totals nearly half a billion dollars. The value of the horses who will face the starter in the big event is, at a rough estimate, about $200,000.

A Battle of Millions.

It will be a battle of the millions, and the most powerful of all these millions, those represented by William C. Whitney, will probably win. It is an honor which Mr. Whitney covets, and he has spared no expense to compass it.

Eddie Burke, the layer, whose operations make the small fry of the betting ring, has quoted prices against the Futurity starters. Mr. Burke is the first to post prices in the ring, and if nothing changes his opinion he will make the Whitney trio, King Hanover, Nasturtium and Goldsmith, the choices for the big race at 2 to 1.

Madden's Trio Second Choice.

The Madden trio, Gundry, Yankee and Blue Girl, makes second choice at 5 to 1. So sure is the bookmaker that the race lies between these two stables that he quotes the long price of 10 to 1 against Flywheel, who will run for Perry Belmont, and Heno, who runs in Clarence Mackey's colors. Against the others all sorts of fancy prices are laid. Carroll D., who is owned by Father Bill Daly, and Sun Shower are quoted at 100 to 1, indicating that their chances are very remote.

Big Crowd to See Race.

The Futurity is the fourth race carded, and if the other events are run off promptly the bugler will call them at 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. The chances are, however, that they will get to the post about 4:30 o'clock. It will be a great race, and it is reported that more people will crowd into the beautiful course to-morrow than ever passed the turnstiles before.

TO PREVENT MALARIA.

Hereafter All Cases of Such Fever Will Be Reported to Health Board.

Private physicians, as well as all public institutions, hospitals and asylums, will be required on and after this date to submit reports of all cases of malarial fever that come under their observation to the Board of Health.

WHITNEY'S ENTRY FAVORITE FOR RICH FUTURITY.

Here are the odds on to-morrow's rich Futurity at Sheepshead Bay, as quoted especially for The Evening World this afternoon by Bookmaker Eddie Burke. He made the Whitney stable the favorite at 2 to 1 and 4 to 5. The entries, their jockeys, weights and the odds are as follows:

Horse.	Weight.	Jockey.	Str.	Odds.	Pl.
*Goldsmith	131	T. Burns	2	4 to 5
*Nasturtium	122	Turner
*King Hanover	129	H. Cochrane
*Blue Girl	128	Shaw
*Yankee	119	O'Connor	5	2
*Gundry	114	Mounce
*Fly Wheel	125		10	4
Saturday	125		20	8
Lux Casta	109	Fairgood	20	8
The Tallman	112	L. Smith	50	20
Caughnawaga	112	McGinn	50	20
Pentecost	110		15	6
Hypheos	122		12	5
Barron	112	J. Woods	15	6
Carroll D.	119		100	40
De Reszke	117		10	4
Port Royal	129		30	10
Sun Shower	109		100	40
Heno	112	Odom	10	4
*Whitney's stable.
*Madden's stable.

If Mr. Belmont enters another horse this price will go on the stable.

HANNA'S BOOM IS LAUNCHED.

Club Formed in His Own Ward to Roost Him for President.

(Special to The Evening World.)
CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 30.—There is a brand-new Hanna Presidential boom in town. A club has been formed in the Forty-first Ward composed largely of the Senator's neighbors, whose avowed purpose is to "further in all honorable ways the candidacy of Senator Hanna for the Presidency."

The club has been organized by the election of Robert Irvine as President, and the declaration made that Senator Hanna is the logical candidate for the Presidency. The Forty-first is the Senator's own ward, and the sole purpose of the new club is to boom him for the Presidency.

The club will meet from now on every Thursday night.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Two Men Arrested Following Death of Another at Ashbury Park.

ASHBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 29.—George Hopper and James Robotham were arrested here last night charged with the murder of Edward Hulick, who was found dead in a stable in this place on Aug. 12 last.

The complaint was made by the father of the alleged murdered man, Constable Theodore Hulick, on a state ment said to have been made by Mrs. Katherine Bates, who resides near where the dead man was found. She swears that she saw two men struggling with Hulick on the night of his death.

TWO KILLED, MANY HURT IN BROOKLYN FLAT FIRE.

A child was burned to death and a woman was killed by jumping at a fire which broke out at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon in the double flat at No. 219 Graham avenue, Brooklyn.

The dead are the three-year-old baby girl of the Beck family and Mrs. Rugeiser, who lived on the second floor. Mrs. Rugeiser jumped.

Mrs. Beck after throwing two others of her children out of the window jumped herself. The children were caught by the crowd in the street and were not injured. Mrs. Beck landed on a shed and received severe injuries. She was sent to St. Catherine's Hospital.

Other inmates of the house jumped and were badly hurt. L.

BECCED TO DIE IN ALMSHOUSE.

JOHN VAN MYNEN SAYS CHILDREN WON'T HELP HIM.

Emaciated and tottering under the weight of nearly three score and ten years of a strenuous life, John Van Mynen begged Magistrate Dooley in the Butler Street Court, Brooklyn, today to commit him to the almshouse.

"I've soon got to die," he pleaded. "I've no home and I'm now past seventy-four. Five married daughters and two married sons live somewhere hereabouts, but they've got no room for their old dad. Send me to the poorhouse for life, Judge, and I'll pray for you."

Magistrate Dooley obliged the homeless wanderer with six months in the almshouse.

ADA GRAY SAYS SHE IS NOT DEAD

REPORT OF ACTRESS'S DEMISE PROVES UNTRUE.

The report circulated this morning that Ada Gray, the well-known actress, had died in the Home for Incurables in Fordham, proved to be untrue.

When Dr. Henry Jones, who had charge of that institution, was asked regarding Miss Gray's funeral arrangements he replied:

"Wait a minute and I will let you see Miss Gray."

A few seconds later the actress appeared in the room. She was introduced as Miss Gray by the physician, and in reply to a question regarding her health replied:

"I haven't felt better in seven months."

MATTY IN THE BOX AGAINST QUAKERS.

Giants Begin with Confidence Behind the Great College Boy—Duggleby, Phillies' Twirler.

The Phillies are full of trepidation these times. They go into every game with fear and trembling, because they have lost their ebony mascot. This brunette youth, after following the Phillies all over the circuit, has become an understudy for Charlie Ross. He has not been observed since the Giants put the kibosh on the Philadelphia team early this week.

It is feared that some ferocious fan in Speakeasyville, blaming the sad fall of the Quakers to the mascot aforesaid, took him to a deserted, grassy spot in front of the City Hall and headily slew him.

The first ball pitched by Mathewson hit Dwyer, the umpire, on the roof of the right foot. Uttering a loud cry, he deposited himself on the grass, while the loyal fans gave vent to gleeful sounds, for they like not Mr. Dwyer.

They allege that he stole the same from the Giants yesterday. Both teams gathered around the fallen umpire, who removed his shoe and rubbed his smitten prop with both hands until the doctor who administers to the Giants reached the scene. The doctor opted that the wound was not mortal and Dwyer, not desirous of taking any more chances, limped to the middle of the field.

Thomas took his base on balls. Barry bunted and was thrown out. Mathewson to Garret. Pluck fled out to McBride. Deleahanty walked. McFarland went out. Gantel to Matty, who beat the statement was not true.

The Giants were hopeful of duplicating the good work they did in Philadelphia, when they smote the Quakers hip and thigh in fashion most brutal.

Matty's Arm in Good Shape.

Mathewson, his good arm hard and supple, promised himself great satisfaction, for he was slated to pitch. Donohue had been picked to oppose Mathewson, but Mr. Jennings concluded that the Donohue man might fail to rank with the Giants' college boy. Therefore he put in his star performer, the player with the absurd name of Duggleby, whose curves look like his name sounds.

The crowd was small compared with the gathering early in the season when the Giants were on the roof of the percentage structure, but it was an enormous throng when the showing of the Giants since those joyous days is considered.

The New York fan certainly is endowed with a deckload of optimism. I most cities having tail-end teams the fans are forgetting the way to the ball grounds at this stage of the season.

Steel Trust Magnates from Pittsburgh Back the American Boat at Waldorf-Astoria To- day for $250,000 Against $150,000 Put Up by Walter J. Kingsley for an Eng- lish Syndicate— Money to Be Put Up and Papers Signed in Pittsburg.

The biggest bet ever made on a sporting event—$250,000 to $150,000—was made today in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

W. F. Mustin, President of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, representing a syndicate of Pittsburgh millionaires, bet a quarter of a million to $150,000 posted by Walter J. Kingsley, of London, that the Shamrock will not lift the cup.

This bet is not only the biggest bet ever made of a similar character but it establishes the odds for other bettors on the cup races. The chances of the American boat are considered a good enough to warrant the offer of odds of 5 to 3 in her favor.

Mr. Kingsley arrived in New York on the Deutschland yesterday, bringing with him a commission from a syndicate of English sportsmen to place $250,000 on the chances of Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht. Mr. Kingsley had not thought that he would place the bet in a lump and anticipated some difficulty in securing the odds he desired.

On the same boat was a party of Pittsburgh millionaires who gambled so lavishly on the way across that the whole ship was kept a quiver of excitement. They learned of the errand of Mr. Kingsley and concluded to take the bet.

It was as good as settled on the ship, but Mr. Mustin and Mr. Kingsley made an agreement to meet at 10 o'clock this morning at the Waldorf-Astoria to clinch the matter. Mr. Mustin arrived on time. He was accompanied by a lawyer.

Little time was wasted in details. Mr. Kingsley produced his credentials. They showed that a syndicate of Englishmen had contributed $250,000 to place the bet on the Shamrock, and that Mr. Kingsley was authorized to place the money. Mr. Mustin examined the credentials, passed them to a few of his friends and announced that all was satisfactory.

Not was there any difficulty about the ability of the Americans to produce the money. Any of the millionaires in the syndicate could have put it up with as little difficulty as the average man experiences in putting up cash.

"I assure you, Mr. Kingsley," said Mr. Mustin, "that we have had enough applications from men who want to bet in this kind of a way to make the bet a million if necessary. We can get the money without leaving the office of the hotel."

The bettors reached a verbal agreement and adjourned to give time for the drawing up of papers, the drawing of a stakeholder and other details.

Mr. Kingsley would not make public the names of the men in the English syndicate, but it is understood that the syndicate agreement is a done deal.

BOY TOLD A FALSEHOOD.

SAID HIS FATHER TAUGHT HIM TO STEAL.

Charles Hackenbeck, the boy who told the police sergeant at the Ewen street station, Williamsburg, his father had taught him to steal, admitted afterward when arraigned in Special Sessions that the statement was not true.

The boy was arrested on the charge of stealing music and rolls from No. 32 Keap street. His father, Charles Hackenbeck, is an ex-policeman, but he resigned from the force some time ago and now holds an important position with an insurance company.

Justice asked the boy if the statement he had made in the police station was true. He replied that it was not. The Justice then asked him why he had made it and the defendant replied he was told if he did so he would be released.
